for their fate but themselves. From all I can learn, the expedition will be a failure, and those who are caught engaged in it will find no escape from an ignominious death at the hands of the Government attempted to be in-

He will return to Kentucky, whence, I think, he regrets ever having departed. He is universally esteemed by all who have had any intercourse with him, whether of a private or public nature.

The friends of the Compromise plan of the Committee of Thirteen express great confidence now of being able to carry it through both Houses. It is said they have amicably adjusted the several points of difference that for some days past its threatened the measure with defeat. There are, however, those who are well informed, that express a con adent opinion that no Territorial bill can go through the House that has not the Wilmot Proviso at-

Great Battle in California-Victory of the French.

We translate the following astounding news from the Journal de Debats of Paris. The news of the victory of the French will be heard with consternation and dismay, throughout all the United States The next intelligence from San Francisco, via Paris, will probably be the annexation of California to France. Is it possible that we are to lose this new golden star after all the trouble at Washington about allowing her to shine? Forbid it, Patriotism! Americans, to the rescue!

"Our letters from California announce a painful event. In a country in which legality is scarcely yet established, and in which legality is scarcely yet established, and in which all the nations of the earth have numerous representatives, each man has felt the necessity of joining himself to his fellows, to those who speak the same language and have the same interests. The French, who are from 8,000 to 10,000 in number, have assembled on the banks of the San Joachim and the Stanislas, place which are eminently favored, and in which they have discovered very considerable deposits of gold. This circumstance caused the jealousy of Americans, who, pretending to be the absolute masters of the soil and of all it contains, attempted to drive them away. A combat, a vertable battle, in fact, ensued, and a great number of persons lost their lives on both sides. The victory, However, was with our countrymen."

Overflow of Mississippl-Great Destruction of Correspondence of the True Delta.

NATCHEZ, May 13, 1850.

Since I quit your city on Saturday evening, 11th inst. the weather has been wet, cold and stormy. Baturday and Sundaynights, Captain Leathers had the steamer tied up for some hours—during the storm not rain, the successive flashes of lightning making the inundated plantations appear a succession of lakes covered with wreck and rain, far and wide, shantees and handsome dwellings submerged, fences, wood piles, and beautiful garden shrubs, peeping out of the flood, to show the mastery of the mighty flood of the Mississippi. No human being could calculate the extent of the mischief done, almost from a few miles this side of New-Orleans to the opposite shore of Natchez, without coming and seeing with his own eyes. For miles, as the boat came along, we could almost pluck branches off the trees, so deep was the water shirting the wild woods.

The Morganza crevasse is truly frightful: it is five hundred yards wide, perhaps more, and has apread its concomitant gloom, far and wide, where joy, gladness and happy homes, were lately all along the banks of the Mississippi. The cornfields show a more vigorous growth near New-Orleans than they do as you advance to the parish of Point Coupee, where they appear of backward growth and sickly looking, apparently from too much rain.

As sure as preaching, if the river had not made so many crevasses, and so far from the city, New-Orleans, the river is thirteen feet over low water mark, at Baton Rouge, about twenty feet, and at Nutchez, it is about fifty feetover low water mark. NATCHEZ, May 13, 1850.

River Correspondence of the Delta.

River Correspondence of the Dolia.

Steamer Beller Kev.,

Near Vicksburg, May 10, 1830.

In complying with my promise, to inform you of the condition of the plantations bordering on the Mississippi, as we proceed upward, I fear you will find rather a gloomy picture, from which many of your readers in New-Orleans may turn, to look ever a certain book, labelled "bills payable."

To commence, then, with the Bonnet Carre crevasse, of which you have had some slight knowledge yourselves. This is probably larger than any one break in the River, and a large body of water pours through it. The plantations, for twenty miles below and five above it, are either totally or partially covered, destroying the pro-pects of many thousands of bogsheads of sugar, for the present year and the next. After this, we saw no break till we came to the McHattan plantation, about year and the next. After this, we saw no break till we came to the McHattan plantation, about two miles below Baton Rouge. There had been a cave of the bank, carrying away a portion of the levee, for about fifty yards. The water had forced its way through, but with the aid of two or three hundred hands, they had shut off the water, and when we passed, they were engaged in large force, in making back-levee. I considered it by no means as making back-levee. I considered it by no means safe.

Just below Baton Rouge, on the west side, you catch a glimpse of the enemy in ambush, and quietly creeping out towards, and upon, the front lands. This comes from the break near Lobdell's. It affects, more or less, all the estates up to the break. You have scarcely passed this outlet, when you are greeted with the liquid plains from Waterloo, six miles below Bayou Sara. So there is scarcely a dry plantation from Buel's Landing (four miles below Baton Rouge) to Bayou Sara, a distance of thirty-five miles—all sugar estates. These waters, of course, overwhelm Grosse Tôtée, and that whole region towards the Attabapas.

The next considerable break is at Morganza, eight miles above Bayou Sara, on the west side.—The waters from this are kept off the planters from Col. Morgan's to Bayou Sara, by a transverse levee cight miles above Bayou Sara, on the west side.—

The waters from this are kept off the planters from Col. Morgan's to Bayou Sara, by a transverse levee which this gentleman has thrown up to protect himself. The opening is fully a mile wide, and the waters are availing themselves of it in good old cataract style, dashing over it, and hurrying away to the Guif by a shorter cut. Everything is of course eight or ten feet under water from this to Sneed's place, where you get sight of a small island of terra firms once more. But only two or three places enjoy this good fortune, till you meet the ficod again. On the west side from Morganza, clear up till we are in the vicinity of Vicksburg—more than 150 miles—I have not been able to see one plantation (except Sneed's and his neighbors) wholly exempt from the water curse. In fact, for this whole distance, dry land forms the exception to the general waste of waters, and you only now and then see a little patch of ground, resembling a flat sand-bar, with as many negroes scratching about on it as the space will insure them dry footing. Many of the mansion-houses seem to be deserted for the time, and the only signs of animatics. about on it as the space will insure them dry footing. Many of the massion-houses seem to be deserted for the time, and the only signs of animation left on places wholly under water, are negroes dancing in floating cabins, and singing "The more rain the more rost." I saw, this morning, the plantation of Mr. Joseph E. Davis, brother of Col. J. Davis, of Miss. on the west side, nearly submerged, but a few strips of land left. Also, the Turners' places, on the east side, and Col. Coffee's, all completely destroyed for the present crop, that is, they will not be able to make expenses. The east side, from Bayou Sara up to Vicksburg, except the bluffs and a few high places, is also lost for the present season. The river is not falling.

NEW Music .- Dabois & Warriner, 315 Broadway, have just published the "Divertissements," in Verdi's Opera of Macbeth, for the Piano, by Mdlle. Louise Chouquet. Woman and Politics.

To the Editor of The Tribune:

DEAR SIR: I noticed your remarks in this morning's paper in reply to Q-, more particularly "Holding as we do that women, since the law taxes, restrains, imprisons and hangs them the same as men, have a natural right to an equal voice with men in saying what the law should be."

With all due deference, I think you have not taken into view the whole matter as fully as you are accustomed to do.

You say the law taxes women. It taxes their property—so it does the property of aliens and mi-nors. And why? because it protects it.

You say the law restrains women. So it does negroes, aliens and minors. Why ! for their good and the general good of society.

You say the law imprisons and hangs them. It does so only when they offend against it-and it makes no distinction. If a woman robs a man, she is imprisoned; if a man robs a woman, he is imprisoned; if a woman kills a man, she is hung; if a man kills a woman, be is hung. I think the law gives woman at least as much as it requires from her. It requires obedience from her, because it protects her person and property. The *law requires the man to support the woman and does not require the woman to support the man. The law requires the man, in case of war, to fight either by sea or land, not only for his defense but for the woman's also.

It seems to me that if all the rights possessed by man are given to woman, we should be required to perform all the duties required of man, otherwise you make her superior to man, which is not accord-ing to the teaching of either the Old or New Testa-

Do you not think it would be better to let man Do you not think it would be better to be man, and woman be woman, each performing their own peculiar duties in their own sphere, as God ordained and Nature evidently intended they Benedict.

We really are not acquainted with any ordi, nance of God nor of Nature that den'es to Woman a voice in making the laws whereby she is to be ruled. It may be best-we rather think it is-that on Man alone should the duty of choosing officers and framing laws be confided by consent, provided man will perform that duty in a spirit of justice and of equality. We believe the great majority of Women as well as Men have always held this in view. But if Woman feels aggrieved and unjustly treated, and desires the Right of Suffrage in order to redress her own wrongs, we say, Let her have it. It is her right, even though she might do bet-[Ed. ter than to claim it.

Religion in Texas.

For The New-York Tribune. Houston, Texas, is a highly favored place. With a population of about 5,000 souls, it has four Protestant Churches, with an aggregate of about 320 communicants; four Sunday Schools, aggregate number of scholars 350; number of volumes in all the Sunday School Libraries, 2,000. There are circulated, weekly, of newpapers at least 1,000 copies, colated, weekly, of newpapers at least 1,000 copies, of which 400 copies are printed in the city, and 250 are devoted to morality and religion.

Each church is supplied with a highly reputable pastor, to whom their respective congregations contribute a liberal support. The church buildings are all paid for. A Bible Class is sustained in connection with each congregation. It contains a Division of the Sons of Temperance, numbering near 200 members. It has no Theater.

B.

Morality of Stockholm.

Much discussion was excited, a few years ago, by the account which Mr. Laing gave of the vast amount of crime in Sweden. It was, I beliave, pretty satisfactorily made out, that the country is not so remarkable in this respect as unexplained statistics would seem to show. But what Mr. Laing stated regarding one department of morals in Stockholm was, I am assured, not far from the truth. There is a degree of licentiousness in this city far beyond anything ever known in our country, even in the reign of Charles II. I was furnished with an authentic document showing the number of filegitimate births, in proportion to the entire number, to be, in the parish of Maria, 42 per cent; in that of Ulrica Eleonors, 51 per cent; in Clara, 59; in Jacob's and John's, 62; in Cathoven, 68; in Hedning Eleonors, 81; and in St. Nicholas, 82 per cent. These returns are understood to be affected by the flocking of women from the country to be delivered in the city; but it cannot be in any great degree. As connected with this subject was the manufactable of the state of Children's and the subject was the manufactable of Children's constant of Children's Morality of Stockholm. try to be delivered in the city; but it cannot be in any great degree. As connected with this subject may be mentioned the Barns huset, or Children's House, one of the greatest institutions of Stockholm, into which a vast portion of the progeny of itecntiousness are received. One arrangement, by which an infant is received here for 100 dollars bance (£8, 6s. 8d. sterling.) and never more heard of, seems like holding out a licence to transgression. Female indifference to virtue spreads much higher in society than is the case, except in a very limited degree, in England—a fact of which several striking illustrations were related to me. It is striking illustrations were related to me. It is hard to imagine of the neat, clean servant-girls (pigas) whom one sees tripping along the streets in their black bodices and aprons, and with uncapin their black bodices and aprons, and with uncapped heads, that not one of them, or only one here and there as an exception, has the first and chief of female virtues rooted in her heart. Yet such is the fact. I am even assured that it is not uncommon for the peasantry to send their best-looking daughters to Stockholm, with precisely those expectations which Margery in "Love in a Village" into at in her contemplated migration to London. The only special reason I heard assigned for the licentiousness of Stockholm is the great number of military and other official persons living there, with incomes sufficient to give them the run of the galeties of the town (a Licentenant has £28 a year.) but not to enable them to maintain independent housekeeping. The mercantile classes year.) but not to enable them to maintain inde-pendent housekeeping. The mercantile classes are, however, as deeply dyed in this guilt as the Governmet employés. It is a distressing subject, which I must not dilate upon; but I may remark, that the very laxity which is to be complained of, somewhat softens the results, as the guilty, not feeling themselves indignantly thrown off by so-ciety, as they are in England, do not so entirely lose their own respect as with us, and consequently lose their own respect as with us, and consequently continue to observe more external decency. We do not find among them that abandonment to drink, that fearfully rapid course of deprevation, and that inevitable shortening of existence, which are the dire consequences of the loss of female virtue in England, primarily through the very efficacy of the virtuous principle itself. MORE GOLD, AND A SUCCESSFUL. VOYAGE.—The whale ship Sylph, Capt. Francis Gardner, arrived at this port yesterday, last from Otaheite, Society Islands, Feb. 6, with $25,000 in gold dust to her owner, Edmund Allen, Esq. Fairhaven, and $5,000 to the master. She brings half a million ibs. of whalebone and 400 bbls. whale oil, shipped by whalers at the Sandwich Islands. The Sylph sailed hence in July, 1847, on a whaling voyage, and sent home 500 bbls. sperm oil from the Western Islands. She proceeded to the Pacific, and arrived at Panama at the commencement of the California gold fover, took a freight of passengers from Panama to San Francisco, at the highest rates, and thence proceeded to the Sandwich Islands, where she took on board a full freight for home.

W. L. MACKENZIE IN CANADA.-A correspondent of the Commercial Advertiser, writes from Toronto

about Mr. Mackenzie:

An amusing incident connected with him took place in the Legislative Council on the day of the opening of the Legislature; Mackenzie had procured a ticket of admission, and was edging his way forward among the spectators outside the House, when, it seems, he encountered an ancient enemy, who expostulated with him on his audacity in presuming to enter that building on such an occasion, and threatened to turn himout if he entered. Mackenzie parried the assaults of his opponent with grant good humor; and such was the extreme shrewdness of his replies, that the feelings of the bystanders were completely enlisted in his favor, and their ill-will changed into laughter against the person who had so rudely attacked him. He was permitted to proceed without further molestation.

Late from Council Bluffs.

From the St. Louis Republican, May 17.

The fine steamer Saranac arrived yesterday morning, with thirty mounted men, and 690 packs of buffalo robes. The men reached Council Bluffs in Mackinaw boats, where the cargoes of two were discharged on board the Saranac. This is the same party with which Mr. Harvey traveled; and in fact, the boats and their cargoes belong to the Union Fur Company, of which Mr. H. is a partner.—About 400 miles above Council Bluffs, one of the most valuable boats snagged and sunk and a greater portion of the cargo badly damaged, if not entirely lost. The men succeeded in securing two tier of the robes, but the remainder, with a good many rinkets in the shape of dried buffalo tongues, fancy robes, moccasins, &c. belonging to the crew, went down, and after rescuing all in their power, the beat was abandoned. Some of these hardy men have spent the greater part of their lives among the Indians and the mountains of the Northwest Territory, and one old fellow, who has followed trapping and trading with the Indians for nearly 30 years, is now on his third voyage to St. Louis durance of the second of the s years, is now on his third voyage to St. Louis dur-ing the time. We learn that the boat lost was fully insured. Six hundred packs is between forty and fifty thousand robes; truly a valuable cargo.

The Saranac left Council Bluffs on the 10th inst. There were then encamped at Kanesville, and in the circumference of ten miles round, between eight and ten thousand emigrants, with about three

These prices would not continue long, however, as supplies were expected every day from below. The Saranac met five boats between St. Joseph and the Bluffs, all having corn, flour, &c., on board. The Saluda and Robert Campbell, both bound up, were met at Fort Kearney, the Lightfoot, at Iowa Point; J. L. McLean, at Dalles, and the Mary Blanc at Savannah landing. It is thought that these boats will carry up enough to supply the immediate wants of the emigrants, who have made every preparation to start so soon as the grass is up sufficient to afford sustenance to their animals.
